1.   The workstations on this table are DEDICATED for the use of CD-databases and Web-based information sources ONLY.   General Internet use is permitted only on the workstations on the other table.

2.   DEDICATED workstations at this table may be used to access the following information sources.   Click on the icon for one of the following sources:

SIRS   Social Issues Resources Series

SIRS Researcher is a general reference database that contains thousands of full-text articles exploring social, scientific, health, historic, economic, business, political and global issues.   Articles are carefully selected from more than 1200 US and international magazines, journals, and US government publications, from 1988 to the present.   Many articles are accompanied by charts, maps, diagrams, and other illustrations.

SIRS RENAISSANCE

SIRS Renaissance provides current information on culture, architecture, music, literature, film, performing arts, philosophy, religion, and the visual arts.   In addition to full-text articles, SIRS Renaissance includes a comprehensive arts glossary, an annotated recommended readings section, and listings of award recipients in the arts.

EXPANDED ACADEMIC INDEX (EAI)

EAI is the premier database for research in all academic disciplines, from advertising to microbiology to technology. Full-text articles are available from social science journals, humanities journals, science and technology journals, national news magazines, general interest magazines, and the New York Times.

ELECTRIC LIBRARY

The Electric Library is a comprehensive, easy-to-use online reference tool on a wide range of topics.   It includes hundreds of popular magazines and scholarly journals, dozens of current newspapers and news wires, thousands of television and radio transcripts, thousands of photographs and maps, and hundreds of reference and historical sources.

NEWSBANK

NewsBank

3.   Access to computers and networks is a privilege and must be treated as such by all users of the system.   Library users are invited and encouraged to utilize the workstations and resources provided.   The Library may deny access to users who abuse these privileges.   Tampering with library computers or networking is considered a violation of the student conduct code published in the college catalog. When necessary, users who engage in activities that damage college resources or disrupt services will be liable for disciplinary actions.

4.   Full access to Internet sites is permitted to encourage users to explore information technology and to pursue knowledge and information.   However, those who use this service are expected to do so responsibly, respecting the rights of others.

5.   As a forum for many diverse peoples and cultures, the Internet offers unrestricted access to ideas, information, and commentary from around the world, some of which may be inaccurate, controversial, or offensive.   The college does not monitor or control information accessible through the Internet.   Users should be sensitive to the rights and feelings of others who may also be able to view or hear computer visuals, graphics, or audio.   All college policies regarding harassment apply to Internet use.

6.   The Copyright Law of the United States (Title 17 US Code) governs the making of copies, including copyrighted materials.   Copyright restrictions apply to all formats, including computer software and items available via Internet/WWW.   The INDIVIDUAL using this equipment is liable for any copyright infringement.

7.   Users are expected to follow these guidelines for acceptable use of electronic resources.   Responsible users:

   ❑   Avoid actions that make themselves or the college criminally or civilly liable to others.

   ❑   Avoid actions that may inflict needless expense upon the college or others.

   ❑   Avoid actions that may destroy, endanger, or divert another's research or writing.

   ❑   Contribute to a free and open atmosphere for electronic discussion and are considerate of other users of computer resources and facilities.   Threats and harassment of any type are not permitted.